LIBERAL ARTS REVIEW

liberalartsreview@fandm.edu

THE FRANKLIN AND MARSHALL LIBERAL ARTS REVIEW is a biannual journal that publishes student and faculty articles from every department, all integrated by a common theme. In previous issues we explored the concepts of “freedom” (Spring 2007), “Identity” (Fall 2007), “Space and Time” (Spring 2008). and “Education and Knowledge” (Fall 2008). By publishing professors and students side by side, our publication has created a medium for interdisciplinary discourse for the campus of Franklin and Marshall. By purchasing a copy of the Liberal Arts Review, you, too, can be a part of the exciting and ever-growing intellectual community at Franklin and Marshall College.

THE COLLEGE DISPATCH

dispatch@fandm.edu

THE COLLEGE DISPATCH is a monthly, student-produced journal featuring editorials, interviews, commentary, reviews and other creative works by the students and staff of Franklin and Marshall College. Since its inception in 1999, the Dispatch has strived to enrich the College’s literary environment by making its pages home to the issues about which our writers feel strongly. Our pages span politics, world and national news, controversial topics, contemporary literary and graphic arts and matters that impact the Franklin and Marshall community.

PLUME

plume@fandm.edu

PLUME is an annual journal that collects and presents student writing and art of an international scope. This includes all visual arts, translations, poetry, prose and anything else that is considered artistic and internationally-themed by the members of the publication.

EPILOGUE

epilogue@fandm.edu

EPILOGUE is the bi-annual literary and art magazine of Franklin and Marshall College, publishing poetry, fiction, and artwork of currently enrolled students. The editors feel strongly that Epilogue is an essential part of a campus brimming with creativity and that it accurately reflects the growing campus-wide enthusiasm for the production of art and literature. For those looking to pursue art and writing in the future, Epilogue is an effective springboard, a way to get work out to the campus, community, and alumni. Epilogue publishes not only seasoned writers and artists, but also many first-timers. Likewise, it is read by a range of discerning experts to new enthusiasts.

THE COLLEGE REPORTER

reporter@fandm.edu

THE COLLEGE REPORTER publishes weekly, distributing 1625 copies throughout the campus and sending 375 copies to subscribers including the board of trustees. The College Reporter is journalistically and financially independent of Franklin and Marshall College. Our mission is threefold: first, to provide an outlet for truth dissemination, allowing the campus community to better understand our institution; second, to provide an outlet for analysis of the governance and characteristics of the College; third, to provide educational opportunities and a rewarding extra-curricular experience for our staff. We welcome feedback and involvement from the campus community we serve.
