SINCE 1787

COLLEGIATE LEADERSHIP SUMMIT

Delegates participate in a variety of challenging group activities designed to showcase their leadership styles.

During the two-day CLS program, students of diverse backgrounds and students interested in diversity issues closely interact with Franklin & Marshall students, professors and administrators as they explore different leadership and communication styles. Our CLS delegates participate in a variety of challenging group activities designed to showcase their leadership styles.

DELEGATES also have the opportunity to present themselves to the Office of Admission during an interview and campus tour. In addition to meeting peers from across the country, delegates will stay overnight with a current Franklin & Marshall student, allowing them to experience college life in a liberal arts environment.

The cost of travel and attendance is covered by the College, and each year (6) participants are offered full-tuition scholarships to attend F&M. Students may be nominated by a school counselor, teacher or staff member of a community organization. Nominators can find more information, including summit dates, at www.fandm.edu/summit or by calling the Office of Admission at 1-877-678-9111.
