Have a Great History Paper?

Submit it for the Landis Prize in History 2016

Due Friday, February 26, by 4:30 p.m.

The Department of History invites submissions for the Charles I. Landis prize, awarded each spring for the “best paper on a subject in history produced in the preceding calendar year.”

Submissions may be research papers or critical essays of at least twelve pages in length. Papers must have been produced in a one-semester course. The department will consider essays written for courses running during the current academic year and essays written for courses that ran during the spring and summer semesters of the last academic year (i.e. Spring, Summer, and Fall 2015).

Papers written for directed reading or independent study courses are not eligible.

If you have questions about the eligibility or suitability of an essay, please see a member of the History Department faculty.

Students should submit an electronic copy of the paper as an email attachment to the department chair (van.gosse@fandm.edu) by 4:30 p.m. Friday, February 26, 2016.

The award winner will be announced in early April.
